

Criminal &
Regulatory Offences

Criminal & regulatory offences

We are experts at defending all kinds of criminal and regulatory prosecutions. We support our clients throughout the criminal justice process, from initial formal interview to representation at court.

We handle all types of offences, but have particular expertise in countryside-related matters, such as wildlife crime, animal welfare, firearms and regulations affecting farms, shooting estates and other rural businesses.

Road traffic & driving offences

We have extensive experience in successfully defending clients facing penalty points, driving bans, large fines and possible imprisonment. If you have been accused of a driving offence, such as drink driving, speeding, careless driving, dangerous driving or driving without insurance, we can help you.

For some prosecutions for road traffic offences we are able to offer a range of fixed fees to advise and/or represent you at court.

Animal welfare, wildlife & firearms

We have particular expertise in countryside-related criminal and regulatory matters, such as animal welfare, wildlife crime, firearms, and other legislation. We regularly act for individuals, farms, hunts, shooting estates and other rural businesses facing offences under the following:

- Animal Welfare Act 2006
- Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981
- Hunting Act 2004
- Protection of Badgers Act 1992
- Firearms Act 1968
- The Environmental Protection Act 1990
- Health and Safety at Work etc. Act 1974

We also have extensive experience acting on behalf of clients wishing to appeal against licensing decisions in relation to firearms, including revocations, refusals to grant and refusals to vary certificates.

How our solicitors can help you:

- Provide pragmatic and sound advice prior to and throughout an investigation and/or prosecution
- Represent clients at police stations, magistrates courts, the crown court and the court of appeal
